The faculty development programme aimed at enabling the faculty make use of soft ware tools subscribed by the institution. It was a hand on training programme held in computer laboratory.

The various softwares include DELNET, J-GATE used for data search in library, animal simulation software used in Pharmacology Laboratory, and MICROMEDEX drug information software used in Pharmacy Practice. The participants had an enriching learning experience on the use of softwares. The platform enabled them learn about software tools. The programme was successful with around 34 no. of participants.

Dr. S. Sundar, on the 14th of July, delivered his talk on “Use of Library Resources”. He explained about the log in Id, pass word, and various search options of DELNET, J-GATE. and other resources like Shodh Ganga, Shodh Sindhu. The participants were explored of the library software tools in the programme.

Mr. A. Jaiarami Reddy. on the 15th of July presented a power point on Zoom about “Animal Simulation Software, Ex-Pharm Series Software”. The session brought to light instructions to operate the software and its various features. The software consists of videos and assessment procedures. The session also covered the topic of the significance of adopting the techniques as alternatives to animal experimentation.

Dr. N. Prathibha on the 16th of July in her lecture on “Micromedex-Drug Information Software” made the participants comprehend the knowledge about how to use the various features of software in getting drug information.

The three-day programme was organized successfully and the vote of thanks was presented by Dr. S. Venkateswara Rao, Coordinator, IQAC. The feedback received was quite satisfactory as the participants expressed their happiness as the FDP could meet the educational needs of the teachers. The programme was coordinated by Dr. Sundar, from the department of Pharmacology, supported by Mrs. M. Vani, from the dept. of Pharmaceutical Chemistry and Phytochemistry, followed by Mrs. Ch. ### Continued but modified use of animals

- Russel and burch in 1959 proposed that "if animals were to be used in experiments, every effort should be made to replace them with non-sentient alternatives"
- They developed the 3R strategy which includes
  - Refinement- refine experimental methods to decrease unnecessary pain and trauma to animals
  - Reduction- reduce the number of animals used in these experiments
  - Replacement- replace the animal experiments eg- computer simulation models, In-vitro methods, cell culture techniques

Pharmacotherapeutics Assessment in Clinical Practice

The purpose of the assessment is to determine if the patient's drug-related needs are being met and if any drug therapy problems are present. Know your patient by understanding his or her medication experience before making any decisions about his or her drug therapy. Elicit only relevant information necessary to make drug therapy decisions. Always assess the patient's drug-related needs in the same systematic order. First determine if the indication is appropriate for the drug therapy. Second, evaluate the effectiveness of the drug regimen for the indication. Third, determine the level of safety of the drug regimen. Only after determining that the drug therapy selected or being used by the patient is appropriately indicated, effective and safe do you logically evaluate the patient's adherence to the medication regimen. Documentation includes the practitioner's assessment of how well the patient's drug-related needs are being met and a description of the drug therapy problems present.

There are essential clinical skills that each practitioner must develop in order to conduct a productive assessment. These include inquiry, listening and observational skills. You must be committed to learning and teaching yourself the skills needed to assess the drug-related needs of your patients. To be successful, you must understand and master the basic skills as well as the pharmacotherapy knowledge required to conduct a comprehensive assessment of your patient's drug-related needs because over a 40-year career, a clinician will conduct over 160,000 patient assessments.
